ANGLAIS TECHNIQUE

SECTEUR : TERTIAIRE

NIVEAU : TS & T

Preface

This unit aims primarily the trainees in the tertiary dies, it's an entirely new work as it intends to support the technical learning by providing to trainees the necessary background in English communication .

The unit is presented in the following way, initially it contains a complete and condensed review of skills in English grammar to help trainees remaining and improving what they've learned in high school .

To keep the unit within the context of tertiary learning, the second part of this module treats the essential functions of the English communication within the company, like telephoning and reporting information (especially for secretaries), describing and analysing companies trends, writing business letters in English, ...for TSGE, TSC and TCE...etc and many other functions useful for the trainees of "tertiaire".

A list of irregular verbs and a business glossary have been listed at the end of the unit to help trainees working as they can use the English/French glossary or the French/English one.

It is recommended to reach the real aim of this unit, to let trainees communicate in English so that at every step of the unit incite them to speak, to discuss and to express their point of view.

We invite all the interested readers to give us their feedback concerning any side of the unit (the presentation, the structure, the contents.....)

Préface

Ce module est principalement destiné aux filières du tertiaire, c'est un travail qui vise à accompagner la formation technique en offrant aux stagiaires les connaissances nécessaires en communication en langue anglaise.

Le module se présente comme suit, la première partie constitue une révision générale mais brève de toutes les connaissances en grammaire anglaise.

Et afin de mieux cerner la formation tertiaire, la seconde partie de cette unité aborde quelques fonctions essentielles de la communication au sein de l'entreprise comme le phoning, le transfert des informations, les écrits professionnels (essentiellement pour les secrétaires), ou encore la description et l'analyse de l'évolution de l'entreprise (pour les TSGE, TCE et TSC...) ...etc

A la fin du module il y a une liste des verbes irréguliers ainsi qu'un glossaire Anglais/français et Français /anglais .

Il est recommandé de faire travailler la communication chez les stagiaires en les incitant à chaque étape de s'exprimer en anglais, de discuter leur points de vue car l'objectif principal est celui d'améliorer leur capacité de s'exprimer correctement en anglais.

Transferring information

1. Notice these different ways of saying telephone and fax numbers.

91430	nine one four three zero	(American English)
	nine one four three oh	(British English)
6687	six six eight seven	(American English)
	double six eight seven	(British English)

Exchange your personal end home numbers with a partner.

2. Work with a partner. Take it in turns to dictate telephone numbers and write them down.

29508-47766-966015-01525372245-03916600721

PRONUNCIATION NOTE

In phone and fax numbers, English speakers normally group the numbers in threes, not in twos as in common elsewhere in Europe. 914306- nine one four, three oh six not nine one, four three, oh six.

3. When you transfer information by phone, try not to leave long silences or pauses. These phrases will help you.

Starting	Ready?	Go ahead
Continuing	Have you got that?	Got that.
Finishing	Anything else?	That's all.
Checking	Could you read that back to me?	Could I read that back to you?

Work with a partner. Take it in turns to give each other messages and write them down.

One person dictates and the other write down.

- a. spell their surname for you.
- b. Tell you the time
- c. Tell you're their computer password
- d. Give you a lift home tonight.
- e. Lend you their dictionary
- f. Lend you some money.

VOCABULARY NOTE:

Put lend or borrow in these questions.

Could Isome money?

Could you.....some money?

Notice we lend to someone and we borrow from someone. So when we lend, we give; and when we borrow, we take.

3. we use these phrases to ask if it's ok to do things.

Asking

Can I?

Could you.....?

* informal

Saying yes

Yes, please do.

of course

* yeah, go ahead

 Help yourself.

 inviting someone to take something

saying no

I'm afraid.....

I'm sorry but...

Practice with a colleague. You are in their office and you want to:

- use their phone
 - smoke
 - look at their copy of the production plan
 - copy a file on their computer
 - borrow their copy of the Economist
 - borrow their car
4. who makes these request: a customer (C) or supplier (S)?
- can I place an order?
 - May I have your name and company name?
 - Could you tell me the delivery address?
 - Can you deliver next Monday?
 - Could I have an address for the invoice?
 - Could you tell me how much it will cost?
 - May I have a discount?
 - Would you confirm this order in writing?

Work with a partner. Make up a conversation between a customer and a supplier. Use as many request as you can.

20th November 20..

Mr J. Maréchal
Directeur Commercial
SOMAREX
6 RUE DE Paris
78000 Versailles

Dear Mr Maréchal,

Your name has been given to us by business colleagues in France, as an efficient market research agency specialising in providing advice to UK companies hoping to export to France. As you will see from the enclosed brochures and reports, ours is a medium-sized family business with a range of products for the health food market.

Our immediate objective is to obtain first-hand information on the French market for these products in general and for the breakfast cereal segment in particular. We would like a thorough report on market size, competition and so on. The report should be ready within six months.

Please contact us rapidly if you feel able to handle such a survey so that we can meet to discuss the brief in detail as soon as possible.

Yours sincerely,

26th November 20..

Mr P. Simpson
Vitaplan Ltd
38 Bank Street
London SW1 4KD

Dear Mr Simpson,

We thank you for your letter of 20th November in which you express your confidence in our company and are pleased to confirm that your proposal does indeed interest us.

Our market research agency already has great experience in the field you mention, since we have been working for 12 years on the food sector and have already carried out three market surveys for English firms. In order to discuss the finer details of the survey you require, may I suggest a meeting, perhaps at your head office in London, at some time between 5th and 7th December. Please confirm the convenient time and date as soon as possible with my secretary Mme Dubois (extension 459).

As far as the report is concerned, we should be able to provide an initial documentary survey indicating market trends, potential competitors and health regulations within a fortnight. A more detailed survey on consumer habits and possible retail outlets would take somewhat longer- between four and six months – but we feel confident that we can meet the deadline you suggested without undue difficulty.

Looking forward to our future collaboration, I hope to hear from you soon.

Yours sincerely,

(Signature)

The business letter

Instructions

1. There is no such thing as 'business English'. In the past business letters were full of such meaningless phrases as 'esteemed inquiry', 'I enclose herewith', 'We have perused', 'I beg to acknowledge', 'your earliest convenience', 'I hope I may be favoured' etc. You may very occasionally come across bad letters written today which contain phrases of this sort. Never attempt to imitate this style of writing. Your language should be simple and clear.
2. THE HEADING This differs in one important detail from the personal letter. The name and address of the person you are writing to must be included beneath your own address but against the left-hand margin. This is called the 'Inside Address' and should be exactly the same as the one which be appear in the envelope. If you writing to a man, his name should appear as 'Mr E. Jones' or 'E. Jones Esq.' (Esquire). This latter form of address is in general use and is usually preferable. When writing to ladies the usual title is used :

i.e. : 'Mrs J. Robinson' or 'Miss J. Robinson'.

Very often you will not know the name of the person who will read your letter. In this case you may address your letter directly to the company concerned: e.g. Jones, Brown an Co., Ltd., ('Co.' and 'Ltd' are the usual abbreviations for 'Company' and 'Limited'.) When you are writing to a particular person in a Company or other organization and do not know his or her name, your letter may be addressed to 'The Manager', 'The Director', 'The Principal', 'The Headmaster', 'The Secretary', etc? as the case may be.

In business letters the 'Block Style' of address is becoming more common and should be preferred.

3. THE SALUTATION If the person you are writing to is known to you, you may begin 'Dear Mr-', 'Dear Mrs', 'etc. In all other instances, you should begin 'dear Sir', ' Dear Sirs', or 'Madam', 'Gentlemen' or 'Sirs' as the case may be.
4. THE BODY A business letter usually has four main parts:

Reference

Information

Purpose

Conclusion

(a) Reference you should begin your letter by referring to a letter you have received, an advertisement you have seen etc., or to an event which has prompted you to write.

Here are a few usual phrases:

Thank you for your letter of June 3rd.

Many thanks for your letter of April 24th.

In your letter of May 22nd you inquire about....

It was a great pleasure to receive your letter of June 22nd that...

In replay to your inquiry of Oct. 21st, I regret that ...

I read your advertisement in last Monday's issue of 'The Commercial Gazette' and ...

You may remember that I visited you last year when I wax in ...

I was surprised to learn that ...

I recently attended Hanover Fair and ...

I recently called on your agent in this country to ask about ... but he was unable to help me.

(b) Information In the second paragraph it is sometimes necessary to supply more detailed information, which is related to the 'Reference'.

(c) Purpose Here you must give the reason why you are writing your letter. You should state clearly what you want. Take care to answer closely the question that has been set.

(d) Conclusion as in the 'personal letter' it is customary to 'round the letter off' with some polite remark.

Here are a few useful phrases:

I am looking forward to hearing from you soon.

I sincerely hope you will be able to help me in this matter.

I enclose the sample of the material you require.

I do hope I am not putting you to too much trouble.

I shall not act until I have received instructions from you.

I would greatly appreciate an early reply.

I enclose a cheque for 25 $ to cover costs.

Would you please let me know as soon as possible whether you would be willing to ...

I would suggest that you come and see me in person on ...

I would suggest that you come and see me in person on ...

Please accept my apologies for the trouble this mistake has caused you.

5. The subscription Where a letter is beginning. Dear Sir/Sirs/Madam, you must end with the words 'Yours faithfully'. When, however, you address a person by name – even if you barely know him – you must conclude with the words 'Yours sincerely'.

6. THE SIGNATURE Sign your name clearly in full in the way you wish it to appear on the envelope which will be addressed to you in reply to your letter.

 - b. McDonald's charge high prices.
 - c. McDonald's spend more on advertising than anyone else.
 - d. There is a hamburger university.
 - e. The company CEO has a computer in his office.
 - f. McDonald's prefer American managers to run overseas stores.

Now read this article and find out.

SERVICE WITH A SMILE

Three new McDonald's stores open somewhere in the world each day. There are now over 14,000 McDonald's stores worldwide and sales are over $23 billion. So how do they do it? What are the company's strengths?

VALUE

McDonald's keep prices low. They concentrate, on increasing market share.

ADVERTISING

McDonald's spend $1.4 billion annually on marketing, more than any other company in the world.

TRAINING

Every employee receives at least two or three days' training and all managers attend regular courses. The company even has its own Hamburger university in Oakbrook Illinois.

FACE-TO-FACE MEETINGS:

The company headquarters don't have an e-mail system and there's no computer in the CEO's office but ideas still fly around. There are regular meetings between people in the same region and people in the same line of work.

CLOSE RELATIONSHIP WITH SUPPLIERS:

McDonald's work closely with their suppliers to make sure they can meet the McDonald's specifications.

CULTURAL SENSITIVITY

Before they enter a new country's market, they research the culture thoroughly . and they employ local staff if they can.

CUSTOMER SERVICE:

The restaurants are clean, the service is quick and every McDonald's burger comes with a smile.

3. work in a groups (max 4 persons), prepare a similar presentation of a company of your choice (use sources like economic newspapers, internet, TV magazines...)

It is essential to use the following business plan.

Business plan for a Small Business Presentations

Objectives :

- To play the elements of a business plan to a small business
- To practice a prepared presentation of a business plan in English
- To practice impromptu questioning and answering
- To develop listening skills

Project requirements

- Student may work alone or in groups of 2 or 3 students.
- Each group will select an actual small business or a small business case study for their project.
- Each student will prepare a five minute presentation describing their business, summarizing selected elements of the business plan, and requesting a specific investment amount. For students working individually, the classroom presentation will be a minimum of ten minutes; for groups of three, presentations will be a minimum of fifteen minutes.
- Students may use overheads for their presentations; copies of overheads material should be provided for other students and the teacher.
- Other students will serve as a panel of financial investors. At the end of each session, the student panel will be expected to question the presenters about the details of their proposed small business. With the presented information and the responses to the questions, the panel will allocate an investment pool of dollars among the proposed projects.
- Students should take notes during the classroom presentations. Material from some of the cases may be included in the first unit test on December 20th .

Complaints

* When customers make complaints, it's important to ask questions to get all the facts you need.

Ask questions about these problems.

A You delivered the wrong quantity .

B Oh dear. What quantity did we deliver?

A 300. we ordered 3,000.

B I'm sorry about that.

- 1 you delivered the wrong quantity.
(300, we ordered 3,000)
- 2 you sent the order to the wrong address.
(30 South Road. We're at 40)
- 3 you invoiced us for the wrong amount.
(£4,000 instead of $4,000)
- 4 the goods came with the wrong accessories
(plastic hooks. We wanted metal)
- 5 the cover was the wrong colour
(black, we asked for green)
- 6 the handles were the wrong size.
(15 cm. we ordered 10 cm)
- 7 the goods arrived on the wrong day
(Friday. We asked for Tuesday)
- 8 the case was no good
(the glass was broken)

* what possible reasons are there for these problems?

We're very short staff at the moment.

Our computer crashed and we lost a lot of data.

Think of some more excuses.

SKILLS WORK

Reading

1 sometimes products don't sell well in a new market. Suggest what went wrong in these cases.

WHAT WENT WRONG?

- a- Western companies had problems selling refrigerators in Japan until they changed the design to make them quieter.
- b- In Saudi Arabia, newspaper adverts for an airline showed an attractive hostess serving champagne to happy passengers. A lot of passengers cancelled their flight reservations.
- c- An airline company called itself Emu, after the Australian bird. But Australians didn't want to use the airline.
- d- A TV commercial for a cleaning product showed a little girl cleaning up the mess her brother made . the commercial caused problems in Canada.

- e- Several European and American firms couldn't sell their product in Dubai when they ran their advertising campaign in Arabic.
- f- A soap powder ad had a picture of dirty clothes on the left, a box of soap in the middle and clean clothes on the right. The soap didn't sell well in the Middle East.
- g- A company had problems when it tried to introduce instant coffee to the French market.
- h- A toothpaste manufacturer couldn't sell its product in parts of South-East Asia.
- i- An American golf ball manufacturer launched its product in Japan packed in boxes of four. It had to change the pack size.

2 here are the reasons for the problems, but they are in the wrong order. Number them from 1 to 9. How many did you get right?

- In the Japanese the word of "four" sounds like the word for death. Things don't sell well packed in fours.
- People thought the commercial was too sexist and reinforced old male/female stereotypes.
- Unveiled women don't mix with men in Saudi Arabia and alcohol is illegal.
- 90% of the population came from Pakistan, India, Iran and elsewhere, so Arabic was the wrong language.
- The advertisers forgot that in that part of the world people usually read from right to left.
- The people in this area didn't want white teeth. They thought darkly-stained teeth were beautiful and they tried to blacken them.
- Japanese homes were small and sometimes walls were made of paper. It was important for the refrigerators to be quiet.
- Making "real" coffee was an important part of the French way of life. Instant coffee was too casual.
- The emu can't fly.

3 Look through the passage again and find the words below.

- two abbreviations for the word advertisement.
- The word for people who advertise.
- The word for an advertisement on television.

Compare the style and layout of this fax with the letters on page 42 . How is it similar and how is it different?

2 faxes and letters are very similar. But information about the receiver appears at the top of the fax message so there is often no greeting. Also people often say regards or Kind regards at the end.

Practice writing some faxes. You are Janet Jefferies. Write a fax in reply to Nakagawa's fax. (Work in pairs, one person in the group should write and the others should dictate and check spellings)

Thank him for his fax. Tell him you will meet him at the Heathrow at 16.35 on June. As requested, you booked a single room for him in the Dorchester Hotel for two nights. Check this is OK. (if his wife is coming too, you need to check the booking).

Rises and falls:

- 1 Discuss these figures with a colleague. One person should use the information on the left and the other should use the information on the right. Use these verbs.

Increase	decrease
Rise	fall
Go up	go down

A our market share fell by 1% last year.

B Yes, but on the other hand our turnover increased by 8 %

Our market share	-1%	Our turnover	+8%
Distribution costs	+18%	Prices of raw materials	-4%
The number of new contracts	-6%	Spending on research and development	+9%
Earnings from investments	-3%	Debts to our suppliers	-4%

Reading:

1 what do you know about the Coca Cola Company?

Do you know the story of:

- the inventor of coke?
- The famous coca Cola Contour bottle?
- The secret formula?
- Coke and World War II?
- ‘New Coke’?

THE STORY OF COKE

Dr John Styth Pemberton make it in his backyard, took it to his local pharmacy, and he put it on sale at 5 cents a glass. Hand-painted signs saying ‘Coca-Cola’ appeared outside the store and inside signs invited customers to ‘drink’. But sales didn’t take off. In the first year they averaged just 9 drinks a day.

He thought it would never be very successful and he steadily sold his shares in the business to different partners. In 1888, just before he died, he sold his last shares to Asa G. Candler, a businessman from Atlanta.

He distributed thousands of coupons for a complementary glass of Coca-Cola and he promoted the drink with souvenir fans, calendars, clocks, and novelties ten times their 1888 level.

Coca-Cola had to develop a bottling system and set up plants. The first bottling plant opened in Vicksburg in 1894 and over the next 25 years, the number of plants rose from two to over a thousand.

Other soft drink companies tried to imitate the Coca-Cola taste so the company kept the drink’s package. In 1916, they introduced the first bottle with the famous Coca-Cola shape.

Then the United States joined the war, and the company President gave an order ‘to see that every man in uniform gets a bottle of Coca-Cola for 5 cents, wherever he is and what ever the cost to the company’. As result, Coca-Cola shipped 64 bottling plants abroad during the war. And when the war finished, they were ready to conquer the world .

From the mid 1940s until 1960, the number of countries with bottling plants nearly doubled.

This was the first change in the secret formula since 1886. in pre-launch tests, consumers preferred the new taste. But the tests couldn’t measure their feelings for the brand. Coca-Cola had a special place in their hearts and they didn’t want a change. For the first time in history, sales of Coca-Cola fell. The company responded quickly and marketed the original formula again as Coca-Cola Classic. Sales climbed back up, and continued to grow.

And if you’re not sure what’s the world top selling soft drink is by now; ‘Coke is it’

2. the first sentence in each paragraph of this article is missing. They are all listed below. read the article and decide where each sentence goes.

- Asa Candler had a talent for marketing
- In the 1980s, in the USA only, the company launched a new taste for coke.
- In 1941, there were bottling plants in 44 countries.
- Coca-Cola was invented in Atlanta, Georgia on may 8, 1886.
- So today million of people all over the world are drinking coke.
- The huge increase in the popularity of the drinks led to problems meeting demand.

TWA HAVE THE ANSWERS.

We listened to travellers’ questions at the airport and came up with an answer, in fact we came up with lots of answers – the TWA ‘White Coats’.

‘White Coats’ are a team of young men and women at our Heathrow and JFK terminals-all available to help with your problems.

So the next time you’re waiting for one of our six daily flights to the USA and your passport disappears or your colleague needs some elastic in a hurry, speak to the person in the white jacket with a red carnation in the buttonhole.

- 1 which airline is this advertisement for?
- * What special service are they advertising?

2 Look at the left hand column in the advertisement. Match the replies below to the correct problem.

- no, it opened ten minutes ago.
- No, but we've got a message for you.
- There's an airport limousine downstairs .
- The Cincinnati Reds.
- Around £50.
- Certainly. Go ahead
- I'll look up the best connection.
- 00 1 216.
- When did you last have it?
- There's a phone over there.

3 look at the centre column in the advertisement. Find words or phrases that mean:

- a person who flies planes
- a person who carries luggage
- a tax-free shop
- a short stay in a place between connecting flights.
- Baggage
- Things to carry baggage
- The men's toilet
- At the correct time
- Not late
- Expired (no longer useful or valid)

4 look at the right-hand column in the advertisement. Find verbs or phrases that mean

5 work with a partner . take it in turns to be travellers asking the questions and a “white coat” answering them.

Rules and regulations:

1 Study the table below then use each verb once to complete the regulations.

Can	possible
Can't/cannot	impossible
Must	necessary or
Have to	obligatory
Don't have to	not necessary
Mustn't	prohibited or forbidden

- passengers-----make sure their luggage is clearly labelled.
- Passengers-----take a small bag onto the plane with them.
- Passengers-----carry dangerous articles such as compresses gases, weapons, explosives, or fireworks.
- Passengers-----check in 60 minutes before departure on international flights.
- Passengers ----- check in 60 minutes before departure on domestic flights-30 minutes is sufficient.
- The airline -----accept responsibility for delays due to bad weather.

2 notice the difference between mustn't and don't have to. Decide which to use in these sentences.

- they transfer our baggage to the next plane. We-----carry it.
- Passengers -----use portable telephones because they interfere with the planes' electronic equipment.
- Passengers-----smoke when the plane is taking off or landing.
- You-----take out travel insurance, but it's a good idea.
- This meeting is very important. We -----be late
- We've got plenty of time. You-----hurry.
- You-----return the car to the place you hired it. You can return it to another Hertz garage.

- If you haven't got an international licence, you -----drive

- You-----pay to drive on motorways in England.
- We can buy a ticket et the station. We -----book in advance.

Future possibilities:

1 match these two halves of these sentences.

BA sees profits more than double
British Airways has reported a big rise in profits for the July to September period, but warned that surging fuel costs and competition remain a concern.

Pre-tax profits jumped to £220m ($408m) - up from £105m in the same quarter last year - pushing profits for the first half of the year up to £335m.

Tighter costs and higher passenger numbers helped operating profits rise 23% to £240m during the quarter.

However, BA revised its annual fuel bill estimate up by £20m to £245m.

Surcharges have helped to offset rising fuel costs

“ Rising fuel costs are expected to continue and remain a challenge along with employee costs ”

Rod Eddington, BA chief executive

Check BA's share price

The airline added that fuel costs were 12% up on last year.

However, fuel surcharges, which the airline introduced earlier this year to offset rising energy costs, are expected to raise £160m.

Debts cut

"We are making steady progress in building a more robust airline," said chief executive Rod Eddington.

"Rising fuel costs, however, are expected to continue and remain a challenge along with employee costs," he added.

The company's net debt figure of £3.3bn was now the lowest it has been since 1993, he added.

Despite the improvement, the airline said it would not be issuing a half-year dividend.

Turnover rose 2.2% in the second quarter to £2.03bn.

Employee costs rose by 7.7%, as increased pension contributions and wage awards more than offset savings from job cuts.

BA has slashed its staff numbers by more than 13,000 as part of a Future Size and Shape strategy unveiled by Mr Eddington following the September 11 attacks.

Passenger traffic rose in October

Jump in online bookings

BA also released passenger figures for October, which showed traffic, measured in by revenue per passenger kilometres, was up 1.8% on a year ago.

The airline's load factor - the number of seats filled - was up to 74.2% from 73% last year.

BA said its online booking service was becoming more popular, with a quarter of its passengers opting to book online. Booking revenue from ba.com was up 42% on last year.

The introduction of online printed flight boarding cards - now accepted at 31 airports in the UK and Europe - had helped drive down selling costs by 17.6%.

"Market conditions have remained broadly unchanged since our last report," said chairman Martin Broughton.

"All market segments remain price sensitive and yield declines are expected to continue."

"Consequently, our focus will remain on reducing both controllable costs and debt," he said.

The dollar has fallen to another record low against the euro, amid mounting worries over the US' tightly-stretched public finances.

One euro was worth $1.2975 in early Asian trade, down from Friday's previous record low of $1.2973.

The decline reflects market speculation that US public spending will continue to outstrip government revenues under President Bush's second administration.

The greenback is set to fall further, analysts say

The dollar is expected to fall further, denting European and Asian exports.

"The euro-dollar's break of $1.30 is only a matter of time," said Naomi Fink, currency strategist at BNP Paribas.

"It's just a question of momentum."

Export outlook

The dollar also weakened against the Japanese currency on Monday, falling to a seven-month low of 105.33 yen.

The US currency has been weakening for much of the past year, pressured by worries over the US' record $427bn budget deficit.

“ This loss of competitiveness is what European exporters could do without. ”

Joanne Collins, Daiwa SMBC

But the pace of the dollar's decline has picked up since President Bush - whose heavy spending has pushed the US finances into the red - was elected to a second term in office last week.

The currency markets are also concerned about the US current account deficit, which hit a record $166bn in the second quarter of 2004.

The weaker dollar will make European and Asian exports more expensive, and hence less competitive, in the US.

Analysts warned that this could seriously dent the European economy, which currently relies on exports for much of its growth amid sluggish domestic demand.

"The main source of growth is external demand," Joanne Collins, senior economist at Daiwa SMBC, told the BBC's World Business Report.

"This loss of competitiveness is what European exporters could do without."

The euro has now risen by 57% compared with its all-time low of $0.82, recorded in October 2000.

Elsewhere on the Asian financial markets, gold was up $1.25 at a 16-year high of $434.50 an ounce early on Monday, while US oil prices fell $0.21 to $49.41 a barrel.

By Ben Richardson

BBC News business reporter in Rossiglione, Italy

The first thing you notice about the new primary school in Rossiglione, northern Italy, is the smell.

Despite the fact that it is brand new, there is no eye-stinging stench from chemicals, glues and fresh paint.

Instead it has a warm woody odour that is more afternoon walk than building site.

Set deep in the Ligurian hills, about 30 winding minutes from Genoa, Rossiglione is home to a project that the European Union hopes will provide a blueprint for future constructions.

Partly-funded by Brussels, partly by the local council, the sleepy village is home to one of Italy's first environmentally friendly schools.

Demonstrative

"It is a project that aims to illustrate how things can be done," explains Luciana Zuaro, an architect working on the project.

"People say that bio-architecture is either something for the rich or for private companies, but we need to get it out into the mainstream, the public sector."

"That way, it is no longer a product of privilege but something that benefits us all," said Ms Zuaro, kicking up a cloud of dust as she heads into the unfinished secondary school that is being built next door.

Despite her ready laugh and wild hair, Ms Zuaro is not an isolated player on the lunatic fringe of her industry.

The issue of environmental, or sustainable, building is moving through the UK construction industry "like a hurricane", according to Ed Badke, director for construction and the built environment at the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors.

"You have a push-pull scenario," he explains. "The push comes from the government saying you have to do this. The pull comes from the consumers becoming more environmentally conscious."

Rossiglione's school (right) has been rebuilt from the ground up

The healthier the environment, the better off we are supposed to be

The changing construction landscape also plays its part.

With less land to build on, people are living closer together, increasing the need for better sound proofing, fewer emissions and greener living.

Britain has set out a target of cutting carbon emissions by 60% by 2050, and there is talk of requiring all new buildings to include some form renewable energy, such as solar panels.

"The issue is very much on the agenda," said Gary Clark, a project manager for Hopkins Architects in London.

"There has been a change of mindset as an industry and more architects are taking it seriously. The profession as a whole is fairly keen to push things along."

Green credentials are visible from an early age

The total value of new construction projects in 2003 was £49.6bn (71bn euros; $91bn), according to RICS figures.

Sustainable building accounts for a small part of that total at present, but that is expected to increase with time.

"It's something that happens gradually," said RICS's Mr Badke. "But there is a definite trend from suppliers in the industry to respond to sustainability."

Driving force

In Rossiglione, Ms Zuaro is less keen to wait for change, ducking under scaffolding, checking finishes and asking workers for updates.

"What's interesting is the contrast between the building materials and the techniques that rely heavily on the past, but can be used today thanks to technological advances," she says.

Tiles are made from marble that has been ground down and baked hard; wires and circuit boxes are coated to cut emissions; blinds are incorporated into the double glazed doors and windows, and solar panels are used to generate electricity.

Windows are large to let in natural light, and even when they are closed, there is a current of air that helps the building and its inhabitants breathe.

Natural cork has more uses than just plugging wine bottles

Ms Zuaro is particularly pleased with the school's underfloor heating system.

There are none of the problems associated with maintaining and changing air conditioning filters - and in summer, the hot water is switched for cold, cooling the building.

An added bonus is that the system is fuelled by debris collected from the surrounding woods, cutting heating costs.

Too much?

The main complaint that has been levelled against "green building" is the extra costs that are involved.

Ms Zuaro estimates that the school in Rossiglione will cost between 15% and 20% more than a traditional building.

"If you want to do it on the cheap, then this isn't the method," she admits. "But it is about spending smart, rather than as little as possible.

"And what price do you put on public health?"

Personal insolvencies in England and Wales have hit another record high as interest rate rises take their toll on already over-extended households.

The number of individuals declared bankrupt rose to 9,156 in the third quarter, up 4% on the quarter, and 28.8% on the same period in 2003.

Company liquidations fell 5.6% on the quarter and 12% on the year.

The Bank of England has raised the cost of borrowing five times to 4.75% in an effort to dampen consumer spending.

The figures, from the Department of Trade & Industry (DTI) also showed that 2,811 people took out Individual Voluntary Agreements (IVAs) over the quarter.

IVAs allow interest on debts to be frozen in exchange for people making regular monthly payments.

The number of people taking this option rose 13.6% on the quarter - the highest ever recorded - and 40.6% on the year.

Rates bite

The figures show that higher interest rates have left many people struggling to repay their debts, according to the government's Insolvency Service.

People who have signed up to seductive credit deals are also vulnerable to sudden changes in personal circumstances, such as accidents or loss of unemployment, it said.

"The two things linked together imply the numbers are more likely to go up than come down," said Desmond Flynn, inspector general of the Insolvency Service.

The Citizens Advice Bureau agreed that changes in personal circumstances were partly driving the acceleration in insolvencies.

"When people's circumstances change, it can often be quite minor but enough to tip people over the edge when it comes to paying off their debts," said Sue Edwards at the Citizens Advice Bureau.

Flashing one of these can be more trouble than it's worth

“ The numbers are more likely to go up than come down ”

Desmond Flynn, Insolvency Service

The increase in personal insolvencies is also being fuelled by an increase in the number of people declaring themselves bankrupt, rather than being forced into bankruptcy by a creditor, accountants KPMG pointed out.

Nearly two-thirds of personal bankruptcies are entered into voluntarily - the highest proportion ever.

Enterprise Act reforms which came into force in April make it easier for bankrupts who are in a position to make repayments on what they owe to negotiate a deal with creditors.

This means creditors get a better return than they would have done if full bankruptcy procedures were adopted.

The Act allows for 'honourable bankrupts' to be discharged more quickly, but also can extend the restrictions of bankruptcy for up to 15 years.

"As these figures reveal, more people are making themselves bankrupt which suggests bankruptcy is now seen as a more acceptable way of dealing with debt difficulties," said Steve Treharne, head of personal insolvency at KPMG.

"I suspect this is a result of the perceived simplification introduced by the Enterprise Act.

"Many bankrupts are now discharged from the effects of bankruptcy after only six months, whereas three years was previously more typical."

Companies resilient

The bankruptcy situation for UK businesses, however, has been less bleak.

As personal insolvencies are growing, company bankruptcies have gone in the opposite direction.

"Company insolvencies are now at their lowest ever rate, a trend we expect to see continue over the coming months," said Malcolm Shierston, a partner at Grant Thornton.

During the third quarter 2,975 companies went into liquidation in England and Wales, the lowest quarterly increase on record.

This improved environment for business can be put down to low interest rates, high employment and steady GDP, said accountants PricewaterhouseCoopers (PWC)

When they do hit rocky times, there appears to be a marked shift towards administration from the traditional creditor led receiverships.

Again this can be attributed to a greater take-up of the Enterprise Act, which gives firms more flexibility to restructure their business.

However, small businesses and the self-employed are much less able to ride out economic storms than their larger counterparts.

Insolvencies in the self-employed sector have risen by 130% year-on-year, the DTI's

“ Many bankrupts are now discharged from the effects of bankruptcy after only six months, whereas three years were previously more typical ”

Steve Treharne, KPMG

Companies bask in the glow of a stable economy figures showed.

"We are seeing a marked shift towards administrations as stakeholders take a more inclusive approach to the insolvency process," said Mike Jervis, of PWC.

"What is of concern, however, is the number of small self-employed businesses which are currently failing."

Seven Asian telecommunications firms are coming together to invest between $30m and $40m (£16.3m and £22m) in new mobile phone services and technology.

The Bridge Mobile Alliance will run for three years and aims to develop a common mobile phone service platform.

With a potential subscriber base of 300 million users, member companies include Singtel from Singapore, Cellular from Taiwan, and India's Bharti.

Mobile phone use is still growing across Asia

They are joined by firms from Malaysia, Australia and Indonesia.

The Philippines' Globe Telecom is also represented.

'Seamless usage'

Bridge Mobile Alliance hopes to make it easier for people to better "roam" or use their phones while in another country represented by one of its seven members.

Plans include a common way in which to top up pay-as-you-go handsets.

"The regional collaboration will improve cross-border service delivery and customer care, delivering a seamless service experience for users who roam from one preferred partner's network to another," said Singtel chief executive Lim Chaun Poh.

The seven Bridge Mobile Alliance members are PT Telkomsel (Indonesia), Singapore Telecommunications Inc, Taiwan Cellular, Bharti (India), Optus (Australia), Globe (Philippines), and Maxis (Malaysia).

Mr Lim said talks were ongoing with four other regional operators to join the alliance, but declined to name them.

One in four second-hand cars sold in the UK has dangerous or illegal faults, motoring group the RAC says.

More than 40% of the cars up for sale would fail an MoT test, it said.

The RAC analysed 500 of its own vehicle inspection reports and found 18% of the cars had at least one dangerous fault, with a further 4% classed as illegal.

More than two out of four used cars would fail an MoT, the RAC says

Among the faults found - described by the RAC as "very worrying" - were badly or unevenly worn tyres, fuel leaks, damaged brakes and uneven steering.

The RAC study follows last week's Which? magazine report, which said three out of four cars it had tested received poor service from garage mechanics.

'Buyer beware'

Tony Noakes, head of RAC inspection services, said: "The level of issues we find with used vehicles is very worrying.

"Half of vehicles we checked had more than 10 faults. And even if they weren't a risk to motorists' safety, 60% of those with faults would cost the new owner more than £200 to fix.

"Potential issues are many and varied but reliable inspection services are not. Our motto for RAC inspections is always 'buyer beware'," he said.

Motorists buying a used car are being advised to get it independently inspected, but also to check its history to make sure it has not been stolen, written off for insurance purposes or still carries an outstanding loan.

Last week's Which? survey showed mechanics carried out unnecessary work at a quarter of garages. Others skimped on basic checks.

This included not checking the brakes or gearbox, which could leave motorists with potentially unsafe cars.

Which? booked 48 cars into garages for a full service, introducing three faults that should be picked up in a service.

Immediately after each service, the cars were checked to see whether the faults had been spotted, and inspected to see exactly which parts of the car had been checked and which items had been fixed or replaced.

Which? found that 35 of those cars did not get a good service.

Your curriculum vitae is the single most important weapon in your armoury when it comes to job hunting.

A prospective employer will often make a snap judgment the second they read it and even the most qualified people on the planet can find themselves rejected if the resume fails to come up to scratch. So how can you give yours the edge?

Avoid making it too fancy and complicated. You only have about five seconds to grab the attention - if it is too clever and unreadable it will go in the bin.

Don't try to make jokes and never slag off previous employers.

CV length

There are no set rules governing the length of your cv - this will be decided on your career history, education and achievements. If possible try to keep it to one page, but if this looks too cramped then feel free to spread it out over two sheets.

Everyone has a different theory when it comes to cv design. Don't get too bogged down over this, just make sure everything is clearly marked. Include your career progression, education and achievements prominently so your prospective employer doesn't have to search.

Here is a basic format: Start off with your name, address and contact details clearly listed at the top of the page. Follow this with a profile of yourself which should include an outline of your skills, experience and immediate career goals.

Check the ad and match up your skills with the requirements

Remember to include

- Career history
- Skills and strengths
- Awards and achievements
- Contact details

After this you can put in your career history - in reverse chronological order over the past 10 years - with brief descriptions of your responsibilities and achievements. Then comes education, interests/personal details and references.

Stick to the truth

Make sure it is printed on good quality A4 size paper and never attach extra documents, letters or certificates - save these for the interview. Read and re-read your cv, and then ask a friend or family member to read it as well.

Make sure there are no spelling errors or coffee stains as these will be fatal.

It might sound obvious, but be truthful. Never try to smudge dates and jobs to hide periods of unemployment. The most basic of checks will expose your deceit and ruin any chance of getting the job.

Follow all instructions on the job advert. If they want four copies of your cv then you should send four. It is also vital to get it in on time. The covering letter should be customised for each job you apply for as this is your chance to tailor your skills to the demands required.

Short temper, anxiety, tension, depression - just some of the symptoms of stress. And with Britons putting in the longest hours in Europe, work is a prime cause. Is it possible to de-stress the workplace?

When the sun blazed down on Monday, countless workers gazed grumpily at the blue skies and wished - if not for a day off - that they could at least head to a local park for the afternoon meeting.

Not those at the microelectronics firm Ingenico Fortronic in Fife. As the temperature rose, its 250-strong workforce spilled into the garden to conduct their daily business. For the office has a lavish staff playground - including a chill-out zone, bistro and games room - kitted out for wireless working.

Can't wait to get away?

"We encourage staff to hold meetings in the garden - on hot days it is always packed," says spokeswoman Rochelle Bushell. "And no-one abuses it. People take time out when they need to, but we find that they stay longer and work harder. People are a lot more relaxed too."

While few firms have gone this far in their attempts to sweeten work life, the onus is now firmly on employers to deal with stresses that arise.

Bosses could face legal action if they fail to keep pressure at a manageable level, and to this end the Health and Safety Executive has published a six-point code on how to measure stress at work.

If fewer than 85% of all staff feel they can cope with the demands of the job, for instance, or one-third say they have been bullied at work, the company must do better.

Employees can already sue their companies for causing them unnecessary stress under the Health and Safety at Work Act. But cases can be difficult to prove, and the HSE has not brought any prosecutions on these grounds. The new guidelines may change that by giving its inspectors a way of assessing a firm's performance.

Workers cannot relax by fun and games alone - but it might help

Ben Williams, an Edinburgh-based chartered corporate psychologist, says distractions such as table football or at-desk pampering sessions do not necessarily ease tensions.

"If people really want time out, they should go outside and have a walk in the fresh air, or a coffee in the canteen - anything that takes them out of their work environment."

And generous paypackets do not equal relaxed staff. The supermarket chain Asda came out top in the Sunday Times 100 Best Companies to Work For last year, a list compiled from staff satisfaction surveys. The average salary may only be £9,000 a year, but workers praised the family spirit of the company and its approachable management.

Chilled-out change manager

Bosses keen to beat stress should ensure that support is available, and that the work to be done is sufficiently challenging to keep it interesting.

"Without sufficient challenges, workers run the risk of rust out, in which they get bored and start clock-watching - that is stressful in itself. But if the pressure becomes too great, people suffer burn out."

One of the greatest causes of stress in the workplace is change, Mr Williams says, and staff need help to work through their reactions to a shift, be it a physical relocation or lay-offs.

Which is not to say that only stressed-out workers need attention. Mr Williams recommends that all bosses offer praise rather than criticise slip-ups, and encourage friendly interaction between staff.

"Praise is an antidote to the blame culture, and it's very important for getting the best out of people. It doesn't surprise me in the least that David Beckham wants to leave Manchester United - after working with [England manager] Sven Goran Eriksson, going back to Sir Alex Fergusson must be like going back to prison."

Is your workplace stressful or stress-free, and why? Send us your comments.

Earlier this year I had a heart attack for which the usual underlying causes could not be blamed. Despite there being no proven link between stress and heart attacks, stress and long working hours were almost certainly the cause. I had a very time consuming job for an ISP - at my desk from 7:30, no lunch, left at 18:30 if I was lucky, and a couple more hours at home in the evenings. My heart attack gave me chance to realise that chasing a career is pointless if there is no quality of life to go with it. My employer is supportive (so far) of my new regime, but I can't help thinking that if I had not had a heart attack, they would have expected me to keep delivering more than was reasonable.

Working for the NHS can be extremely stressful due to the workload that is around at the moment. We have to meet deadlines & targets, trying to minimise waiting lists. We have no perks in the NHS BUT we have a "stress policy" (big deal), then people wonder why nurses & allied health professionals are leaving.

Paul, UK

I used to work for a company where I ended up being the only member of the customer service team, as well as cover reception and any other odd jobs. After my manager retired in Nov 2001, I had no immediate manager to turn to for help or assistance. The last straw came at Christmas when I received no recognition or reward for 'holding the fort' for the past 12 months. I was so stressed and bitter about the whole experience, I felt the only way out was to find another job.

Lisa, UK

If you think the UK workplace is stressful, you should try the US. A six-day work week is quickly becoming the norm, and late evenings in the office are compulsory - in that if you don't spend a good 12 hours in the office (with a half hour to choke down lunch) it means that you aren't serious about building the company, and you're next in line to be laid off.

Rob, New York City

Being paid for overtime should be mandatory, so that like the minimum wage, it stops employers taking advantage of employees. Humans are not designed to sit at a desk for even 7 hours let alone 10+.

Spencer, UK

Not know what's going on in the company can be very stressful. Recently a For Sale sign appeared outside our office - fortunately it wasn't because the company was in trouble, but we were moving. No announcement or information came down from the top. Gossip and rumour circulated for ages until the truth came out.

Ian, Scotland

I start work when I want between 8.30 and 10.00, I lunch for an hour, and I finish around 5.00 to 5.30. I'm appreciated by everyone I work with and supported by my team and manager. My employer provides a gym, a pool, tennis courts, lunch every day, tea and cakes at 4.00 - all as part of my package. My salary isn't the highest, but its enough.

Steve, Oxford, UK

We can take a day's holiday at the drop of a hat (I did so yesterday, because our contract specifies that if the sun is shining, then we should be allowed to take the day off to go surfing). Because of their attitude to us, we are all happy to work extra time, without extra pay. They have a 'give and take' attitude, and all the staff respond to it.

Sal, UK

Here in Finland work attitudes are way more relaxed than in the UK. You can come in late, go home early, spend three hours in town on a sunny afternoon if you want, so long as you get the job done and are in for meetings.

Ben Cornwell, Finland

Our company has gone through a restructure and a takeover, which means job cuts and relocation. New location is inconvenient for everyone (apart from the directors), which will no doubt decrease our standard of living (longer commutes) and lower moral (inconsiderate company). Change has to be acceptable to the staff - without us, the directors would not be able to produce good results.

The US economy added 337,000 jobs in October - a seven-month high and far more than Wall Street expectations.

In a welcome economic boost for newly re-elected President George W Bush, the Labor Department figures come after a slow summer of weak jobs gains.

Jobs were created in every sector of the US economy except manufacturing.

While the separate unemployment rate went up to 5.5% from 5.4% in September, this was because more people were now actively seeking work.

Markets boost

The 337,000 new jobs added to US payrolls in October was twice the 169,000 figure that Wall Street economists had forecast.

In addition, the Labor Department revised up the number of jobs created in the two previous months - to 139,000 in September instead of 96,000, and to 198,000 in August instead of 128,000.

The better than expected jobs data had an immediate upward effect on stocks in New York, with the main Dow Jones index gaining 45.4 points to 10,360 by late morning trading.

"It looks like the job situation is improving and that this will support consumer spending going into the holidays, and offset some of the drag caused by high oil prices this year," said economist Gary Thayer of AG Edwards & Sons.

Hurricanes' silver-lining

Other analysts said the upbeat jobs data made it more likely that the US Federal Reserve would increase interest rates by a quarter of a percentage point to 2% when it meets next week.

"It should empower the Fed to clearly do something," said Robert MacIntosh, chief economist with Eaton Vance Management in Boston.

Kathleen Utgoff, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor, said many of the 71,000 new construction jobs added in October were involved in rebuilding and clean-up work in Florida, and neighbouring Deep South states, following four hurricanes in August and September.

The dollar rose temporarily on the job creation news before falling back to a new record low against the euro, as investors returned their attention to other economic factors, such as the US's record trade deficit.

There is also speculation that President Bush will deliberately try to keep the dollar low in order to assist a growth in exports.

Manufacturing was the only sector that did not add jobs in October

The dollar fell to a record low against the euro on Friday, with analysts forecasting more declines to come.

Meanwhile, oil prices moved in the opposite direction, with a barrel of US light crude ending up 79 cents to $49.70 on fresh Iraqi security concerns.

With the US forces stepping up the pressure on Iraqi rebels in Falluja, Brent crude also finished up in London, gaining 41 cents to close on $46.42.

The currency market is not optimistic about another Bush term

Analysts believe the US will try to keep the dollar weak to boost exports.

They point to America's giant trade deficit.

Further falls?

The US currency dropped as low as $1.2962 against the euro on Friday.

The fall came despite positive jobs data from the US Labor Office on Friday, showing that 337,000 new positions were created in the US in October - double Wall Street's expectations.

"What this (the dollar's fall) shows is that the structural problems in the US economy are completely dominating the positive cyclical news that we had today from payrolls [unemployment figures]," said Aziz McMahon, a strategist at ABN Amro in London.

"It seems now that the longer-term investors like pension funds and perhaps monetary authorities are either hedging their dollar risk or moving assets out of the United States.

"It looks like the dollar has further to fall," Mr McMahon said.

European concern

Richard Franulovich of Westpac Banking said Friday's dollar fall was "nothing short of stunning".

"This is a pretty good guide at just how entrenched negative sentiment is toward the dollar," he said.

In Europe the dollar's decline, and in turn - the euro's rise - raised fears that it will hit European exports.

The euro is now 57% above its all-time low against the dollar of 82 cents from October, 2000.

French President Jacques Chirac said he was "a little bit worried about the weakness of the dollar".

Speaking at a summit of European leaders in Brussels he hinted that the European Union should take action.

"This should provoke certain reactions on our part," he said

The business plan captures the strategic operational and financial aims of the business.

A good business plan will contain:

- an initial executive summary, summarising the detail of the business proposal
- a written overview of the business' aims
- its product or service
- management team
- financial forecasts and appendices, such as the CVs of key management members, market research data or technical product information.

A good business plan will attract initial investors

The body of your business plan should cover several areas in detail.

Give the reason for the business being established - include business goals, for example, whether ambitious growth is desired or a regular, steady trading level.

Explain what your business will do in simple terms, highlighting any features that set it apart from rivals.

Include market and competitor information, outlining what part of the market you are targeting, key competitors and what differentiates you from them.

Financial forecast

Think about your sales and marketing strategy, include information on how the product or service will be priced, channels to market, advertising and marketing plans.

Details of key personnel and their relevant experience are also important, as is operational information like office location, special equipment and expected employee headcount.

State the financing you need, based on your financial forecasts.

Include details of any finance provided by the founder or management team and indicate the key risks to the business and any mitigating action you can take.

Business plan essentials

Management background
Business aims - what are your future plans?
An assessment of the competition
Research to back claims and forecasts

Your plan should also include a sales forecast, cashflow forecast and a projected profit and loss account for up to five years' ahead.

Larger businesses should also draw up a projected balance sheet.

The figures used must be reasonable - avoid being over optimistic. The involvement of a qualified accountant in preparing these forecasts is recommended.

By David Wilkinson
Partner, Ernst & Young

How do you turn your idea into a thriving business? BBC News Online asked David Wilkinson to provide a roadmap to success.

Before pursuing any form of finance you need to ensure you have a good business plan to present to potential investors. This will be your blueprint for development.

There is a lot of readily available information out there to assist you. For example, Ernst & Young has a best practice business plan guide on its website or in hard copy, as do many other blue chip companies and professional advisers.

You also need to be able to communicate:

- what you need the capital for
- the nature of your business
- the market
- your plans and aspirations.

That will determine in turn what funding you have a chance of getting.

What kind of funding is right for you?

You can fund your business by equity, debt, grants or a combination of these.

As an entrepreneur you need to balance the desire to retain control of the business with your appetite for external funding.

Retaining control is often important and some funding sources can dilute your own return on the business.

For those of you who want to avoid such dilution, an attractive option is a traditional business loan from a bank.

Loans

Types of loan can vary greatly depending on the bank, so researching what is on offer is very important.

Alternatively banks may be willing to offer an extended overdraft facility if the funding requirement is relatively low.

It is also important for the entrepreneur to identify his/her personal goals. If 100% control is required, then often self-funding the capital is the most effective way of establishing a revenue-generating company.

If that is the case, it might be time to call in some favours from family and friends.

“ As an entrepreneur you need to balance the desire to retain control of the business with your appetite for external funding ”

Email David for advice on how to start up or develop your business

It's worth having a hard think, though. Which will yield the best returns: 10% of a business worth £20m, or 100% of a business worth only £20,000?

Venture capital

A second option is venture capital. Generally, venture capitalists have a less conservative view of risk compared to banks although the expected return is much higher.

The benefits of venture capital are many.

Venture capitalists can provide a good source of financial and management expertise when they invest in a company, as well as possibly make the company more attractive to other funders, especially secured lenders.

However, venture capital can be expensive with a great deal of up-front preparation required including potentially costly legal and financial advice.

Venture capitalists will take an often controlling equity stake in the company. For most entrepreneurs this is the biggest disadvantage.

Business angels

An alternative source of equity funding can be found in wealthy private individuals, known as business angels.

As with venture capital, these individuals will look for a high return rate through taking an equity stake in the business.

(However, they are more likely to support start-up ventures and will offer lower amounts of equity.)

Many business angels are established members of the business community who, in addition to providing much needed capital, can also provide invaluable industry insight.

The disadvantage here, again, is that the entrepreneur would have to relinquish a relatively large proportion of equity.

Grants

Grant funding remains a popular choice for business start-ups.

Government agencies such as Small Business Gateway offer help and advice on which grants are available.

Other types of assistance include soft-loans and consultancy assistance, which can help with the fund raising process.

A good source of knowledge is your local Business Link, which advises and helps on all aspects of setting up and running a business.

www.businesslink.org

There may also be some special initiatives or grants that are available to you depending on your individual circumstances.

For example, The Phoenix Fund encourages entrepreneurship in disadvantaged communities and groups.

Where can you go for more general assistance?

Small Business Service (SBS) is a government agency that champions small businesses.

The SBS operates a number of schemes & initiatives that are tailored to help people starting up a business. For example, Business Link falls under the umbrella of the SBS.

www.sbs.gov.uk

Local Enterprise Agencies (LEAs) are partners with Business Link and carry out business counselling and training.

They have a number of courses, titled the 'Start Right programme', run jointly with a high street bank, which can help you answer some of your questions (majority are free).

Most LEAs can assist in strategy, business planning & raising finance.

National Association of LEAs

The Busygirl Network, meanwhile, supports women entrepreneurs in developing fast-growth profitable businesses.

It represents about 8,000 corporate and entrepreneurial women and provides information about coaching and mentoring, business development and raising finance.

www.busygirl.com

There are a growing number of print publications that address the issues of this sector, such as Growing Business, Real Business and Business XL. There are also websites like startups.co.uk.

The customer is always right. This has long been a key motto for successful businesses, and it still applies.

Attracting new customers is costly and unpredictable. Gaining business from existing customers is far easier.

Customers who have received a good service may well recommend you to others but customers who feel badly treated are likely to moan about you instead.

Is the customer always right?

As a small business you won't have national advertising campaigns to boost your image, so you need to make sure that any word-of-mouth publicity is positive.

Maintaining a positive reputation is vital.

Customer value

Develop a service promise, and deliver against it.

If you claim to offer personal service at affordable prices, make sure that you do.

Try to accommodate your customers' needs - going the extra mile can be a big distinguishing factor, so use your size and flexibility to your advantage.

Remember that little things - such as a friendly approach - can make a big, positive impression.

Ensure that all staff who deal directly with customers are trained appropriately.

Determine which are your most valuable customers: these are the ones who buy most from you over the longest period, taking into account any costs involved in servicing them.

The most valuable customers should receive the highest degree of customer care.

Dealing with customer complaints

Welcome complaints and encourage feedback
Train staff to deal with angry customers
Make a record of problems and try to track the source

Take customer complaints seriously. Always apologise first, even before establishing the details.

Once you have found that there is a problem, agree a solution and make sure it is handled quickly.

Handling complaints well can turn a dissatisfied customer into a loyal one. You should even encourage complaints as they can indicate where your service could be improved with the most impact.
